Ershig Assistive Technology Resource Center

The E-ATRC’s mission is to facilitate the integration of assistive “support” technologies into all levels of life and learning across the life span.

The center’s purpose is to increase awareness, knowledge and skills about the range of technology available to support individuals with diverse needs.

Center staff supports WCE education, nursing and human service professionals-in-training as they learn about tools to benefit their future students, patients and clients.

In addition, the center welcomes professionals from local schools and other organizations as well as individuals and family members from the community who want to learn more about assistive technology.

The E-ATRC is a ‘hands-on’ lending library that houses hundreds of assistive devices and materials that can support learning and improve quality of life for a range of individuals with diverse needs.

You can learn more about assistive technology and the E-ATRC at our website wce.wwu.edu/e-atrc.

Contact the center director, Linda Schleef, for an appointment, at Linda.Schleef@wwu.edu

Center for Education, Equity and Diversity
Miller Hall, Room 005 • wce.wwu.edu/ceed
(360) 650-3827 • ceced@wwu.edu

- The Journal of Educational Controversy ceddar.edu/jec • cep-ejournal@wwu.edu

Ershig Assistive Technology Resource Center
Miller Hall, Room 001 • wce.wwu.edu/e-atrc
(360) 650-2763 • Linda.Schleef@wwu.edu

Pacific Northwest Children’s Literature Clearinghouse
Miller Hall, Room 308 • wce.wwu.edu/pnclc
(360) 650-2164 • pnclc@wwu.edu

Woodring Technology Education Center
Miller Hall, Room 034 • wce.wwu.edu/wtec
(360) 650-3318 • wtec@wwu.edu

Parking and Visitor Information
Campus Services Building
2001 Bill McDonald Parkway
www.wwu.edu/pax/parking/visitor.shtml
(360) 650-2945

Western is an AA/EO institution.
Pacific Northwest Children’s Literature Clearinghouse

The Clearinghouse provides a resource for sharing the latest in children’s and young adult literature with novice and experienced teachers, librarians, and community members.

Every year over 40 publishers are generous enough to send us (free of charge) their latest and greatest selections. Currently, our facility houses several years’ worth of published books. The books are available for the Woodring and Western community as well as the education community at large to review and to use with children and teens.

The collection assistants are available to orient newcomers, help with selections, and introduce new books and materials.

You can learn more about the Clearinghouse and its collection at our website: wce.wwu.edu/pnwclc

Center for Education, Equity & Diversity

CEED supports Woodring College of Education in its commitment to an education that promotes cultural understanding and social justice in a pluralistic, democratic society.

The Center’s mission is based on the belief that all children and adults can learn and develop in a psychologically supportive and culturally affirming environment.

The Center’s purpose is to provide resources that focus on issues related to equity, diversity, self-exploration and identity, inter-group relations, multicultural education and democratic empowerment and civic engagement; particularly focusing on issues of retention and success for historically underrepresented populations within the education system.

The Center houses books and other multi-media resources available for check-out.

The Center’s events include presentations, professional development opportunities, film screenings and discussions about issues related to education, equity, diversity and multicultural education.

You can learn more about CEEP at our website: wce.wwu.edu/ceed or on Facebook at https://facebook.com/wceed

Contact us at: CEEP@wwu.edu or (360) 650-3827
Visit us in: Miller Hall 005

The Journal of Educational Controversy

The Journal of Educational Controversy: an Interdisciplinary Journal of Ideas is a peer reviewed electronic journal that aims to promote a conversation between educational professionals and the general public.

The purpose of the journal is to provide a national and international forum for examining the controversies and tensions that arise in the education of citizens of a pluralistic, democratic society. Each issue poses a different dilemma or controversy and invites authors to respond.

The journal also promotes discussion through other media:
- Blog: The Journal of Educational Controversy Blog
- An Annual Educational Law and Social Justice Forum
- Video Interviews with Authors
- Other workshops, lectures and symposia

Website for the Journal of Educational Controversy: ject@wwu.edu/jec

Contact the journal at: Cep-ejournal@wwu.edu

Woodring Technology Education Center

WTEC’s purpose is to provide students, faculty, and staff with technology access and support.

The Center consultants support WCE students, faculty, and staff as they utilize technology for professional practices.

The WTEC loans laptops, tablets and accessories to Woodring students and faculty for use in classes as well as for use in various projects with community members and P-12 students.

You can learn more about technology available for checkout as well as WTEC hours at wce.wwu.edu/wtec.